

Alameda County Mayors' Conference and Alameda County City Selection Committee

The Alameda County Mayors' Conference is comprised of the mayors of the incorporated cities in Alameda County including Alameda, Albany, Berkeley, Dublin, Emeryville, Fremont, Hayward, Livermore, Newark, Oakland, Piedmont, Pleasanton, San Leandro and Union City.

Since its formation in 1954, the Alameda County Mayors' Conference has functioned to:

- develop and maintain a means of cooperative effort and understanding in matters of mutual interest and concern;
- assemble information helpful in the consideration of problems peculiar to the various areas of the county;
- provide guidance for united city action in dealing with local municipal affairs;
- serve as a city/county relations organization;
- consider, study and make recommendations regarding regional problems;
- explore all practicable avenues of thought advanced in the interest of local public welfare and policies.

The Alameda County Mayors' Conference holds a monthly business meeting to carry out its purpose including committee action related to appointments for various regional commissions and committees, review of legislation, discussion of regional issues/concerns and solutions, a presentation of topical importance, and a dinner.

The Alameda County City Selection Committee, which is also comprised of the mayors of all fourteen cities in Alameda County, operates in accordance with California Government Code Section 50270 et seq., in order to appoint city representatives to various governing boards of regional and county agencies. Currently, the Alameda County City Selection Committee makes appointments to the governing boards of the following five agencies:
