Latest Updates on Coronavirus: Older Americans Urged to Continue 'Distancing'

by Rachel Nania, AARP, Updated June 29 2020

What can older adults do to reduce their risk of illness?

Older adults and people with chronic underlying health conditions are more likely than younger, healthier people to experience serious illness from COVID-19, the disease caused by the coronavirus. There is no specific age at which risk increases. Rather, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) says "risk increases steadily as you age" and despite initial warnings from the agency, "it's not just those over the age of 65 who are at increased risk for severe illness." Part of the reason risk increases with age is because people are more likely to have other health issues later in life, and underlying health conditions are a huge driver of complications that arise from COVID-19. A June report from the CDC found that hospitalizations for people with COVID-19 were six times as high for patients with chronic health conditions, compared to otherwise healthy individuals, deaths among this population were 12 times as high.

Health conditions most associated with severe illness from COVID-19 include:

- Chronic kidney disease
- Chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD)
- A weakened immune system from organ transplant
- Obesity (BMI of 30 or higher)
- Serious heart conditions, such as heart failure, coronary
- artery disease or cardiomyopathies
- Sickle cell disease
- Type 2 diabetes

Health conditions that might increase risk for severe illness from COVID-19 include:

- Asthma (moderate to severe)
- Cerebrovascular disease
- Cystic fibrosis
- Hypertension or high blood pressure
- A weakened immune system
- Neurologic conditions, such as dementia
- Liver disease
- Pregnancy
- Pulmonary fibrosis (having damaged or scarred lung tissues)
- Smoking
- Thalassemia (a type of blood disorder)
- Type 1 diabetes mellitus

The CDC has issued specific guidance for older adults and people at high risk for serious outcomes. Here's what the agency recommends: Avoid close contact with others, Stock up on supplies. For older adults and others at high risk for severe illness from a coronavirus infection, traveling can be dangerous, especially if you are in close contact with others. "People at higher risk for severe illness need to take extra precautions," the CDC says. Staying home is still the best way to protect yourself and others from getting sick.

Major League Baseball has officially announced a plan to return to play that features players reporting for training by July 1, leading up to a proposed 60-game regular-season schedule anticipated to begin on July 23 and 24.

Coping with stress during the 2019-nCoV outbreak

It is normal to feel sad, stressed, confused, scared or angry during a crisis.

Talking to people you trust can help. Contact your friends and family.

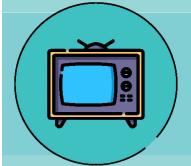

If you must stay at home, maintain a healthy lifestyle including proper diet, sleep, exercise and social contacts with loved ones at home and by email and phone with other family and friends.

If you feel overwhelmed, talk to a health worker or counsellor. Have a plan, where to go to and how to seek help for physical and mental health needs if required.

Get the facts. Gather information that will help you accurately determine your risk so that you can take reasonable precautions. Find a credible source you can trust such as WHO website or, a local or state public health agency.

Limit worry and agitation by lessening the time you and your family spend watching or listening to media coverage that you perceive as upsetting.

Draw on skills you have used in the past that have helped you to manage previous life's adversities and use those skills to help you manage your emotions during the challenging time of this outbreak.

LIFE Meals on Wheels ElderCare Volunteers Needed

If you're available on weekdays between 10:30-12:30, LIFE ElderCare needs volunteers to deliver Meals On Wheels to elders in Fremont, Union City, and Newark. Help out as often as you can - 1x / week, once every two weeks, once a month, etc.

Or, sign up to become a friendly visitor and make weekly calls to an isolated senior who needs support. This is a flexible opportunity that can easily fit into your schedule - and is a great way to volunteer while still sheltering-in-place.

Please call 510-894-0370, email info@LifeElderCare.org, or sign up at www.LifeElderCare.org.

To Camilla Chinn... For donating beautiful masks that will be distributed to the Drive-Thru BBQ participants. A lot of love and hard work was put into them. What an excellent example of making the most of your time at home!
